Editorial....

Dear Friends,

Welcome to the April 2016 18th Journal of the News letter. Many of our donors and well wishers will now be emerging from the challenges faced in the last financial year. We wish this year also you will Succeed from all your financial struggles. We hope the images/features in this issue will contribute to the glow of renewal and enrichment.

We are happy to report that this progress has made us to establish a flow of articles for the Newsletter. In future we hope that these steps will bring better results. This issue provides you an insightful assessment of our recent charitable activities.

Our intervention during Chennai flood, another successful year of India Winterim program, opening of two Telemedicine centers at Theni and Dindigul Districts, Celebrity visit like Tamilnadu Congress president EVKS Elangovan, Governor Thiru. Rosaiah visit for inaugurating bike ambulance, former Mayor Thiru Patturajan and Cinema Actress Sunaina, as witnesses of all our philanthropical services.

The readers of this Newsletter will by and large, have a reasonably established interpretation of what the concept of "helping others" implies.

Indo-US Conference on dental wellbeing is a classical example of our partnership improvement by associating with five dental colleges (Best dental science college, Sri Ramachandra University, CSI college of dental science and research, Indira Gandhi institute of dental sciences, Rajas dental college and hospital), Indian dental association, Indian medical association and association of plastic surgeons of India.

Once again we would like to express our gratitude and appreciation to all our contributors that also includes time, effort and money. This willingness that helps to make a difference in the life of the underprivileged, are much valued and welcomed.

Your donations only made all these services possible!

Thank You All.

Emergency Service during Chennai Flood

Round the Clock Relief Work

MMHRC sent a relief team on 7th December to Chennai, two days after the flood.

Many families were either stranded or isolated owing to the destruction.

Case in point, a lady from Kodambakkam was kept away from her husband and child by the flood. She had no means of contacting anyone. Mr. Sivarao, the associate of Late Sasiperumal, an anti liquor activist, found her on the streets while he was out at this patrol by midnight. He took her immediately to the project office. The lady was wet and was running high temperature. She was given first aid and further treatment by the medical team. The team also helped her establish communication with her family. On inquiry, it was found that her house was submerged and her husband and child were stranded on the terrace for three days without food. All her belongings were washed away.

MMHRC arranged essential household items, clothing, Tarpaulin, bed sheet, stove, commodities etc., and took her home. The medical team accompanied her and treated her family members and counseled them towards withstanding a situation. The young mother was overwhelmed when she was finally able to see her child.

Accommodation

More 50,000 families in Chennai were displaced and thousands of houses on the bank of Koovam, Adayar, and Buckingham rivers were washed away. More than 500 people were affected by flood. Those families were taken to relief camps around the city, where the government took care of their needs over ten days. Ten days later, the people were asked to return. Sadly, many of them had nowhere to go to. The environment was still very wet and highly infectious, saturated with bacteria, mold, fungi, viruses and dust.

MMHRC arranged Tarpaulin sheets and other necessary household items to start afresh. More than 3000 people without homes were able to locate a place, raise a make-shift house and start over. Thanks to the assistance provided by MMHRC. The tarpaulin sheets were specifically designed to aid them by providing shelter during flood relief.

Medical Relief in Pulicat Island – Isolated from Mainland

Pulicat Island is located in Thiruvallur district near Sriharikota rocket launching pad. The island is 1 km wide and 15 km in length. It is located between The Bay of Bengal and Pulicat Lake. It was the first Dutch settlement in India. All of the rivers in Chennai flow into the sea through this lake. Due to this, the flood kept the island dwellers isolated from main land for over a week.

Emergency Service during Chennai Flood

MMHRC ran two health centers here, with 10 medical and paramedical staff. It rendered round the clock medical care, despite the difficulty in reaching the mainland. MMHRC's medical team had an ambulance, stock of medicines, medical consumables and first aid accessories.

In addition to these, household items, clothing and other consumables were distributed to the families. To safeguard the people from water borne diseases, all of the drinking water sources were kept disinfected by the team.

The medical team visited all of the 15 hamlets, providing free health checkup, free treatment and referral to further medical care where necessary, to all of the people.

Medical Relief and Counseling to School Children

The recent flood in Chennai did not spare schools either. Many schools were submerged and remained closed. When the schools reopened after the flood water drained away, the students were unable to pay attention due to malnourishment, sickness, impending infections and fear/trauma.

In this situation, MMHRC organized health camps for many affected schools in collaboration with local NGOs and school management. All the school children in the affected areas were given health checkup and awareness about spread of disease in post flood scenario. In addition to free treatment, counseling and guidance was also given. The children were also given adequate nutrition supplements to enhance their immunity. More than 10 schools were covered by MMHRC's health team.

When a particular infection and its symptoms were identified among students, a special health camp was organized for the family members of the child towards ensuring a healthy environment and to avoid the infection from spreading.

Volunteer Work

The floods affected both the rich and poor in the city. Despite working hard 24x7, MMHRC's relief team was unable to reach enough people. And so, teachers, lawyers and other good Samaritans were approached to help reach the flood victims and ensure the availability of necessary relief material.

MMHRC was able to mobilize the Indian lawyers Association. A group of teachers too extended their support to us. With their help the team served the victims better. Many volunteers provided their homes to stock relief material, medicines, etc. Some arranged for the distribution of necessities and first aid kits to those in need.

In a publicized function, three judges of the Madras High Court honored the volunteers who helped us in serving the flood victims.

Emergency Service during Chennai Flood

Medical Care for Mothers and Children

A disaster adversely affects the physical and psychological wellbeing of pregnant women and mothers of infants. The flood in Chennai was such a disaster that caused serious harm to the health of many lactating mothers which in turn led to severely malnourished infants.

To combat this, MMHRC arranged nutrition packets for young mothers and children above two years with nutrition packets which contained an ideal mix of vitamins and minerals in the form of consumables.

Aiding the Government in Relief

The floods also blocked government aid and relief from reaching certain areas and carrying out timely disaster response. This led to some unrest among the victims.

MMHRC's team accompanied government officials and aided in facilitating access to victims. Since the people already recognized MMHRC's team, the government officials were given easier access and were able to reach out and provide help much sooner.

Advanced Medical Help through Telemedicine

Understanding the gravity of the situation, the Management at Meenakshi Mission Hospital and Research Centre, sent a team of Doctors and medical personnel in a specially equipped Mobile Telemedicine Van to the affected areas.

The team went around the affected areas and organized Health Camps. Everyday more than 1000 flood victims were treated. Complicated cases were referred to base station at Meenakshi Mission Hospital, Madurai, for super specialty medical opinion, vide telemedicine technology.

Despite the fact that all services came to a standstill, the Telemedicine Van was able to provide timely medical help. The telemedicine unit carried two emergency care doctors, 3 Nurses, 1 pharmacist, 2 lab technicians, 1 camp coordinator, 1 telemedicine technician and 1 trauma care counselor, along with necessary medicines, medical equipment and medical consumables.

In addition to treatment, the crew also provided medical awareness and counseling, so that the victims may stay infection free in the post flood environment which is highly infectious.

Telemedicine takes modern health care to villages

Centres Have High-Tech Equipment

Karishma Ravindran

Madurai: Hospitals in Madurai city are increasingly concentrating on telemedicine to reach out to patients in rural areas.

At least three hospitals in the city have started telemedicine departments in an attempt to improve diagnosis and treatment of patients in rural areas. Each hospital has set up seven telemedicine centres in such areas. Patients visiting these centres can consult doctors in the city via video chat.

The Mammakshi Mission Hospital operates six telemedicine centres in Virudhunagar, Tuticorin, Ramanathapuram and Madurai. It also runs two centres at Pulicat in Chennai.

"Our hospital has six telemedicine centres at various places in the district. Through telemedicine, a doctor sitting miles away is able to check a patient's heart rate, blood pressure, cardiac ailments. This new technology has enabled patients from rural areas to ne-

Telemedicine centres also offer consultations in areas such as ophthalmology, gynaecology, dermatology and general medicine.

Hospitals in Madurai are increasingly concentrating on telemedicine.

Program, USA. R. Rajagopal said that the telemedicine centre establishes a link between doctors and patients with the help of a large number of high-tech equipment. Such a centre is helpful even for patients suffering from neurological problems, he said.

Dr. Paulraj Raj, executive director of Aravind Eye Hospital, which has 55 telemedicine centres across the district, said doctors could access the case history of patients available on computers at these centres.

"The prescription is also provided to patients on the same day through trained technicians at these centres," he added.

Doctors don't want to work in rural areas

Times News Network

Madurai: The fall in the number of doctors willing to work in rural areas of the district is the main reason behind the deteriorating health care system in such areas.

Most doctors want to work only in metro centres as it is a more lucrative profession there.

SEEKING BETTER OPTIONS

"Specialists want to work in metros as they have more facilities there. After receiving their specialisation, doctors don't want to waste their talent working in primary health care centres in rural areas," said Paulraj Raj, executive director of Aravind Eye Hospital.

"Moreover, everyone wishes that their children receive good education. So doctors shift to metros," said Dr. Raj.

Quality of life, not longevity, matters: health guru

"It is up to you to decide whether you are going to lead a healthy life all through or a long life, spending the last 10 years in a wheel chair with diapers"

GOOD FOOD: Ravi Menon, health guru, addressing a meeting organised by Confederation of Indian Industry in Madurai on Thursday. — NIKIL K. N.

SPECIAL CORRESPONDENT

MADURAI: The quality of life mattered more than longevity and one's metabolic age was more important than chronological age, said Ravi Menon, health guru, while addressing a meeting organised by the Confederation of Indian Industry (CII), Young Leaders and Young Entrepreneurs College of Engineering here on Thursday.

Mr. Ravi, whose book, The Baby Elephant Diet, was released on the occasion by S. Gurushankar, vice-chairman, Mammakshi Mission Hospital and Research Centre, said that the easiest way to improve one's health was to watch "what you eat." "Your body is your temple and food is an offering," he said.

Prescribing a "Baby Elephant Diet" for keeping one's body agile and fit, Mr. Ravi cautioned that a lot of junk food was masquerading as health food in the market. People should decide between "junk" and "active" life, he said, elaborating that being active meant that one should not accept anything as "junk" value. He reminded the audience that man was the fastest animal on land and beyond a dis-stance of 30 miles and he was followed by elephant and camel. "You are optimised in long-term fitness, not speed. It is up to you to decide whether you are going to lead a healthy life all through or a long life, spending the last 10 years in a wheel chair with diapers," he said. It would be possible to gain control over life by managing the level of being active by 10 per cent.

While stressing the vegetarian diet provided the necessary strength and energy, Mr. Ravi said, "Vegetarians in India do not eat vegetables." According to him, a rich diet should have more of vegetables, pulses and fruits, with rice sprinkled on them. Two things — less food and percentage of body fat — mattered for a healthy body and "the moment you start working on them, you will feel younger."

If people not only looked younger but were really younger metabolically, he said and wanted the participants to look at the body as a sustainable eco-system, in which good bacteria thrived. Warning against the use of antibiotics, Mr. Ravi said that one of the worst health issues — obesity — was a result of overuse of antibiotics.

Dr. Gurushankar explained how the present mode of infrastructure was inadequate to cater to the health care needs of the future, and said that prevention was the best way to avoid going to a hospital.

K. Hari Thirugan, chairman, Young Leaders, and SM. Manikandan of Yava received the first copy.

Launching New Service “Bike Ambulance”

Launching a new service “Bike Ambulance” in South Tamil Nadu’s first.
The Honourable Governor Dr.K.Rosaiah, inaugurated the new service.

Genesis of Meenakshi Mission Hospital and Research Centre

Meenakshi Mission Hospital and Research Centre, which is run by the S.R. Trust* (registered under the Indian Trust Act in 1985), has been pioneering medical philanthropy for over 26 years in Madurai. As the largest hospital in South Tamil Nadu, with 800 beds, MMHRC has been delivering compassionate care to the poor and marginalized, with passion and constant commitment. "Quality Care within Everybody's Reach" is what the hospital delivers to the poor and downtrodden across South Tamil Nadu, through various sustainable charity programs.
